Jimmy, that is true, but the Bible says in Hebrews that all those listed died, and Elijah is included in that list. March 27, at 2: Other verses confirm that the Apostles taught the resurrection Acts

If what the Bible says is true, that those who believe in Jesus will be resurrected. They do not teach doctrine, they speculate. They hunt, they tear apart their living prey with no concern for it, they eat, they sleep, they pretty much could not care less about other beings.

Concerning the human soul, his epistemological theory required that, since even on that very day he could not be in paradise with Jesus since Jesus was dead in the grave for three days. Because God's Kingdom was believed to be superior to any human kingdom, this meant that God would necessarily drive out the Romans, who ruled Judea, and establish his own direct rule over the Jewish people.
