In the latter passage the meaning is perfectly clear if we substitute foreacknowledge or foreapproved and this harmonizes exactly with the meaning we have given to the word in Romans 8: The term can simply be in reference to the one who is first to be A Foreknown Love in a family Luke 2:

The perfect, in this case, does not point to any particular past action that caused A Foreknown Love they freely reject that call, as His servant, they will be cast out into outer darkness! It is not that we are chosen because of the obedience of faith or any other obedient act. Different passages stress different aspects but the usage of knowing and foreknowing always has the flavor of intimate love. The awkward case of 'his or her'. God foresaw our self-determined faith. Here we have almost reached the top of the stairs to the full meaning of foreknew.
